Dedicates Himself in Inaugural to Law Enforcement at Home and Promotion of Peace Throughout the World—Most Malign Danger from Which Self-Government Must Be Safe-Guarded Is Disregard and Disobedience of Law.

Washington, March 4 (AP).—Here is the text of the inaugural address of President Herbert Hoover:

My countrymen: This occasion is not alone the administration of the most sacred oath which can be assumed by an American citizen. It is a dedication and consecration under God to the highest office in service of our people. I assume this trust in the humility of knowledge that only through the guidance of Almighty Providence can I hope to discharge its ever increasing burdens.

It is in keeping with tradition throughout our history that I should express simply and directly the opinions which I hold concerning some of the matters of present importance.

Our Progress

If we survey the situation of our nation both at home and abroad, we find many satisfactions; we find many dangers for concern. We have emerged from the losses of the great war and the reconstruction following it with increased vitality and strength. From this strength we have contributed to the recovery and progress of the world. What America has done has given renewed hope and courage to all who have faith in government by the people. In the large view, we have reached a higher degree of comfort and security than ever existed before in the history of the world. Through liberation from wide-spread poverty we have reached a higher degree of individual freedom than ever before. The devotion to and concern for our institutions are deep and sincere. We are steadily building a new race—a new civilization great in its own attainment. The influence and high purposes of our nation are respected among the peoples of the world. We aspire to distinction in the world, but to a distinction based upon confidence in our sense of justice as well as our accomplishments within our own borders and in our own lives. For wise guidance in this great period of recovery the nation is deeply indebted to Calvin Coolidge.

But all this majestic advance should not obscure the constant dangers from which self-government must be safeguarded. The strong man must at all times be alert to the attack of insidious disease.

The Failure of Our System of Criminal Justice.

The most malign of all these dangers today is disregard and disobedience of law. Crime is increasing. Confidence in the law and speed of justice is decreasing. I am not prepared to believe that this indicates decay in the moral fibre of the American people. I am not prepared to believe that it indicates an impotence of the federal government to enforce its laws.

It is only in part due to the additional burdens imposed upon our judicial system by the 18th amendment. The problem is now wider than that. Many influences had increasingly complicated and weakened our law enforcement organization long before the adoption of the 18th amendment.

To re-establish the vigor and effectiveness of law enforcement we must critically consider the entire federal machinery of justice, the re-distribution of its functions, the simplification of its procedure, the provision of additional special tribunals, the better selection of judges, and the more effective organization of our agencies of investigation and prosecution that justice may be swift. While the authority of the federal government extends to but part of our vast system of national, state and local justice, yet the standards which the federal government establishes have the most profound influence upon the whole structure.

We are fortunate in the ability and integrity of our federal judges and attorneys. But the system which these officers are called upon to administer is in many respects ill-adapted to present day conditions. Its intricate and involved rules of procedure have become the refuge of both big and little criminals. There is a belief abroad that by invoking technicalities, subterfuge and delay the ends of justice may be thwarted by those who can pay the cost.

Reform, reorganization and strengthening of our whole judicial and enforcement system both in civil and criminal sides have been advocated for years by statesmen, judges and bar associations. First steps toward that end should not longer be delayed. Rigid and expeditious justice is the first safeguard of freedom, the basis of all ordered liberty. The vital force of progress. It must not come to be in our republic that it can be defeated by the indifference

Curtis Inaugural Outlines Duties Of Vice-President

Position Contrasts Sharply With That of General Dawes Four Years Ago—His Obligations Call for Impartial Construction of Rules Which Senators Adopt.

Washington, March 4 (AP).—Assuming the vice-presidency today with an inaugural address to the senators over whom he will preside, Charles Curtis took a position sharply contrary to that of his predecessor on the relationship of the chief officer of the senate to the senate's rules.

Fresh from 20 years' service in the senate, Curtis asserted to his colleagues that the vice-president "is not one of the makers of the law, nor is he consulted about the rules adopted to govern your action."

Whereas four years ago Charles G. Dawes, the business man entering the vice-presidency, had pleaded for revision of the senate rules to limit debate, Curtis, the legislator, today declared the obligations and duties of this office "require a recognition and application of the precedents which have brought the United States senate to its present recognized position of paramount importance as a legislative body."

"My service among you," he declared, "has impressed me with the responsibilities of every senator and at the same time it has given me a clear understanding of the duties and obligations of the vice-president."

"He is not one of the makers of the law, nor is he consulted about the rules adopted to govern your actions. His obligations to the people of the country to whom he owes his high position and his duty to you senators call for a fair and impartial construction of the rules which you, yourselves, have adopted and which you alone may change. His obligations and duties require a recognition and application of the precedents which have brought the United States senate to its present recognized position of paramount importance as a legislative body."

Turning to his predecessor the new vice president expressed to him "appreciation, admiration and esteem for his services."

"We will agree," said Curtis, "that he has filled his arduous duties and frequently onerous duties with credit and distinction, not only to himself but to the senate and to the people of the United States."

Text of Curtis' Address

The text of Mr. Curtis' address follows:

Senators: The United States Senate is today one of the most distinguished legislative bodies in the world—one of the greatest and most powerful powers for the protection and advancement of civilization. Its personnel is of a calibre equal to, if not the superior of, any previous body heretofore assembled. Any individual, no matter how outstanding in the realm of leadership, political or otherwise, might well be proud to preside over its deliberations. I may, therefore, be pardoned in declaring here the feeling of pride which I experience through my election as vice president of the United States such a signal honor has come to me. I hope I may prove worthy of the people's choice, and of you. No effort of mine will be spared to aid and assist you in the successful solution of the numerous intricate and important problems which will come before you.

During the course of my 20 years' service among you as a senator from the state of Kansas, I have profited much from the wisdom, tact, and experience of the members of this august body as displayed by its most modest and unassuming members as well as by its most outstanding and brilliant leaders.

My relations with the senators during all these years have been pleasant. My memories of persons and events in this chamber constitute some of the most delightful in a long public life by no means devoid of warming memories.

At this point I may with propriety think, be permitted to offer to the honorable gentleman who is retiring as presiding officer of this body, Mr. Dawes, an expression of appreciation, admiration and esteem. We will all agree that he has filled his arduous and frequently onerous duties with

New Yorkers at The Inauguration

Gov. Roosevelt Absent But State Education Commissioner Graves and Major General Haskell Bear State Standard—State Delegations in the Parade.

Washington, March 4 (AP).—New Yorkers by the thousand today found themselves playing prominent roles in the ceremonies that revolved around the inauguration of Herbert Hoover as President. By railroad, automobile and airplane they had poured into the national capital for two days or more and today they lined the sidewalks or took their allotted places in parade down stretches of Pennsylvania avenue.

The state's entries in column formed to file by the new President lacked the militaristic aspect that characterized many delegations, but this was offset by the spectacular appearance of several New York marching groups, including many women dressed in colorful uniforms of red, white and blue and the men of the Hoover-Curtis Club sporting their broad-brimmed sombreros.

The Martha Washington Woman's Republican Club Patrol and the drum corps of Erie county continued to hold the major portion of the spotlight that has been theirs since the arrival of their special cars yesterday morning. They had supplanted their colored slickers with contrasting-hued pleated skirts and blouses, and to head their column they brought an enormous picture of Herbert Hoover which had been held aloft during their parades.

Accompanying them was another organization from Erie county which had taken active part in campaign. The Lafayette Republican Club, while in other parts of the parade women of New York were represented by the Ladies' Auxiliary of Veterans Foreign Wars and the Woman's Overseas League.

New Yorkers were denied one pleasure, however,—that of cheering the chief of their own state as he passed along in the line of march. Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt did not come to Washington for the inauguration and in his stead visitors from state found Commissioner of Education Frank Graves and Major General William N. Haskell bearing the state standard in the governor's division.

Although no National Guard units and staff colonels came from New York to vie with the martial tramp, military units from other states, the military was not entirely without representation. The American Legion had its Empire state delegates, the Military Order of Foreign Wars sent its group as did the Veterans of the World War, and the United States Army Officers' Association.

Republican leaders and party workers of the state were not without their delegations, either. In fact, the G. O. P. probably was better represented than any other section of Empire State life.

Inauguration of Curtis in Senate

"I Take Back Nothing" Shows Dawes in Reply to Curtis' Speech, Amid Laughter and Applause.

Washington, March 4 (AP).—Charles Curtis, the first man from west of the Mississippi ever to serve as vice president, took the oath of office today as second in command of the American government.

Amid impressive surroundings in the historic senate chamber where he had served for years as his party's leader, the newly designated vice president, descendant of French, English and Kaw Indian blood, was sworn into office in the presence of his chief-of-boss, Herbert Hoover, and his departing chief, Calvin Coolidge. The ceremony was a prelude to the inauguration of Mr. Hoover as president half an hour later. It drew to the capital thousands of old friends of the Kansas and of the departing Vice President, General Dawes.

Immediately after the administration of the oath, Mr. Dawes delivered a brief farewell address reminiscent of that which he delivered four years ago in denunciation of senate rules. "I want to express my heartfelt gratitude to the senate and members of the senate for their courtesy to me," he said, in a calm, strident voice.

"I take back nothing," he shouted as the chamber roared with applause and laughter, and Dawes himself smiled at his benediction.

Curtis' speech, brief and friendly, carried the spirit of comradeship for his colleagues. In it he said that the senate was master of its rules, which Mr. Dawes had fought so bitterly.

Curtis banged the gavel sharply as he took over the chair at the end of the benediction by the senate chaplain.

His work over, Mr. Dawes walked down and took place on the presidential row facing the chamber.

Young Boy Shot Himself With Rifle Sunday

Raymond Weishaupt Had Eaten His Dinner and Then Gone to His Room—Report of Gun Heard Few Minutes Later—Boy Died at Kingston Hospital.

After eating his dinner on Sunday at his home, 27 South Prospect street, Raymond Weishaupt, who would have been 14 years old if he had lived until March 8, excused himself and went to his bedroom on the floor above. A few minutes later the report of a gun was heard and the boy's father, Frank Weishaupt, and his older son, Theodore, ran upstairs to the bedroom and found the body of the boy stretched out on the floor with a .22 calibre Belgium rifle, the property of his father, beside him on the floor.

As the Weishaupt telephone was out of order the older brother rushed to a neighbor's house, Fred Bechtold, to use the telephone to call a doctor and the city ambulance. Bechtold got out his car and rushed the wounded lad to the Kingston Hospital where the boy was examined by Dr. Joseph Jacobson, who ordered him removed to the X-ray room, but the boy died on the way to the room. The shooting was reported to police headquarters and Sergeant James V. Simpson made an investigation. From the result of the investigation it was learned that Sunday morning Raymond and his older brother, Theodore, had attended the morning service at the Lutheran Church on the Redeemer on Wurts street. They had ridden their bicycles to church and after the service had ridden back home.

Scolded for Riding Bicycle.

They arrived home exhausted and with their clothing wet and soiled from being splattered with slush by passing automobiles and their father scolded them for riding their bicycles that day and told them to take the machines and place them in the garage and then return to the house for dinner.

The boys did so and the family gathered around the dining table. In addition to the boys, Theodore and Raymond, there was their father and their grandmother, Mrs. Anna Weishaupt. The boy's mother is dead. Raymond was the first to finish his dinner and excusing himself he left the table and went upstairs to his bedroom which he shared with Theodore. A few minutes later those in the dining room were startled to hear the report of a gun, and Mr. Weishaupt and Theodore arose from the table and rushed upstairs.

Rifle Hidden in Closet.

They found the bedroom door open, and the body of the boy stretched on the floor with the head lying in the open doorway. There were blood spots on the wall of the bedroom, on the bedroom door and on the base board. Lying on the floor near the body was a .22 calibre Belgium rifle, the property of the father. The boys had been warned not to use the rifle and it had been hidden in a closet in the father's bedroom and it was not known that Raymond knew of its whereabouts.

Judging from the position of the body it is thought that the boy was sitting on a chair alongside the bed with the gun and that in some manner it had been discharged. The bullet had pierced the temple.

An autopsy was performed on the body at the hospital by Dr. Joseph Jacobson and Dr. Frank A. Johnson and the bullet extracted from the head. Several loaded shells of the same calibre as the bullet removed from the boy's head were found on the floor near the body.

Believes Shooting Was Accidental. Coroner W. Norman Conner stated this morning that although he had not received the official report of the investigation from the authorities it appeared to him that the shooting was accidental and that the boy had been playing with the gun when it suddenly discharged.

The boy is survived by his father, Frank Weishaupt; a brother Theodore; his grandmother, Mrs. Anna Weishaupt, and several uncles and aunts. Funeral services from the late residence, 21 South Prospect street, on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment in the family plot in Wiltwyck cemetery.

ELECTROCUTE THREE NEGROES FOR MURDER

Belleville, Pa., March 4 (AP).—Three negroes, all of Erie, Pa., were electrocuted at Rockview Penitentiary this morning for the murder of Beltrino Cocco at Erie on November 20, 1927. All went to the chair calmly and without comment. The execution was accomplished in twenty-three minutes, beginning with James Parker, 24, at 7:02 o'clock.

RIDING ON RUNNING BOARD.

Jacob Lifshin of 74 Abel street escaped with his clothing torn on Sunday while riding on the running board of an automobile driven by Richard K. For when the car collided with the car of Morris Isaacson of Hasbrouck avenue. The collision occurred on Broadway near Abel street. Both cars were somewhat damaged.

Coolidge Turns To Northampton

Violated Self-Imposed and Seldom Broken Rule of Sabbath Rest So Hoover Could Find Clear Desk.

Washington, March 4 (AP).—Filled with the proud satisfaction of one who has given the best of his years and talents to the service of his country, Calvin Coolidge today came to the end of his career in the nation's greatest office.

Happily he turned toward Northampton and the little house that in humbler days was home. Regretfully he parted from those who have stood at his side in administering the affairs of the nation. But with a glad spirit he hailed the moment when another could assume the weighty responsibilities that for nearly six years have been his.

For that hour the chief executive long has eagerly waited, a feeling in which he was joined by Mrs. Coolidge. The years spent in Washington have been pleasant but the duties they brought have been arduous and at times even irksome. Often Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge have talked of the time when it would all be over and they could "go back home."

Today they waited only the inauguration of the chief executive's successor before entraining for Northampton and their desire to be off was so great that they decided to abandon the traditional practice of returning to the White House for luncheon with the new president. But before their moment of release could be reached, there was work to do. Yesterday, in his anxiety that Herbert Hoover should find a clear desk, Mr. Coolidge violated a self-imposed and seldom broken rule of Sabbath rest with two protracted periods of work.

Today, after the new president's inaugural address, with a few hasty farewells to the secret service men who have guarded him since he became president, the retiring chief executive and Mrs. Coolidge had arranged to slip away as unobtrusively as possible to the Union Station. For their journey to Northampton the Pennsylvania railroad had provided a private car attached to a Washington-Montreal train.

Oath of Office Administered by Chief Justice Taft Who Himself Had Taken It as President Twenty Years Ago—Colorful Ceremony Which President Described as "A Dedication and Consecration Under God."

Washington, March 4 (AP).—The presidency of the United States passed to Herbert Hoover today in a colorful ceremony which he himself described as "a dedication and consecration under God."

Speaking to all the world in an inaugural address delivered from the historic east steps of the capitol, the new chief executive declared disregard of law the nation's greatest peril, and appealed directly to his fellow citizens to help secure observance of the prohibition law.

With hand upraised, he had repeated the words of the official oath of office, administered by Chief Justice Taft, shortly after noon, and had kissed the Bible at a passage saying "He that keepeth the law; happy is he."

A half hour earlier Charles Curtis had succeeded Charles G. Dawes as vice president in a ceremony inside the Senate chamber, enlivened unexpectedly when the new and retiring second officers, making the customary brief addresses, disagreed directly on the old subject of the Senate rules.

Coolidge Shows No Emotion.

Calvin Coolidge, once more a private citizen after 30 years of public service, turned from the inaugural ceremony to begin at once his journey home to Northampton. He had seen power pass from him with whatever emotion may have been struggling within hidden behind a serene inscrutability. For the immediate future, he will devote himself to a series of magazine articles.

A parade, in some respects the most ambitious in history, was the last act of the inaugural drama, including in its allotted units the great dirigible Los Angeles and a hundred circling airplanes. Nearly every state had its place in the long line of marching clubs, bands, military commands, and automobiles loaded with silk-hatted governors. Officials estimated that the rear guard would not pass the White House reviewing stand until late afternoon.

Everywhere about the chief and lesser actors in the day's panorama of history-making there were cheering throngs. They came from everywhere, overran the stands built for them along Pennsylvania avenue, and crowded the sidewalk thickly over the whole mile stretch from White House to Capitol.

Gray and threatening skies saw the induction of the new administration into office, but until the ceremonies had passed their peak only a little misty rain had fallen.

Senate Embroiled in Argument.

Just ten minutes before the Vice President-elect was to take the oath of office the Senate became embroiled in an argument over an immigration bill and a call for a quorum was sent out.

The diplomatic corps was announced at 11:55 a. m., led by Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador.

Next came members of the House of Representatives, led by Speaker Longworth, and as the hour for adjournment and the swearing in of the new vice president became a matter of minutes, Senate clerks were ordered to move the hands of the clock back. This is a favorite legislative method of gaining time.

President Coolidge Arrives.

At 12:05 President Coolidge was announced and again a hush fell, followed immediately by prolonged applause.

Smiling, Mr. Coolidge nodded his head to one side and then another in recognition. He stood in front of the dais facing the chamber as the applause grew.

Dignitaries Take Their Places.

Members of the new and old cabinets, the supreme court in black robes and led by Chief Justice Taft, and high officers of the army, navy, and marine corps entered in groups and were given their allotted places. Then floor and gallery applauded as Curtis, then Coolidge, then Hoover came in to take their special places at the front of the chamber.

Oath Administered to Vice President.

A quorum having by this time appeared, Vice President Dawes administered the oath to his successor at 12:11 p. m. and Curtis delivered at once his short inaugural address.

Seated Under Dripping Skies.

After the vice presidential inauguration was over there was a wait, while those who had seen it and those who were a part of it were conducted in groups through the various exits and seated in their proper spaces under the dripping sky outside. Only the last stand itself, some 20 by 50 feet, had been covered. Under this the president and vice president stood.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)
New Haven—Lindbergh and "My Father" are tied in the votes of Yale College seniors as the man they most admire.

New York—To women members of the American Congress from Lady Nancy Astor, M. P.: "Good going to you to the ladies! God's blessing and help to them from one who needed both."

Philadelphia—In the words of a woman of social prominence a certain bootlegger has ruled more young men and women in the city than any other man. The woman, unnamed, appealed to the police to save her daughter. A man arrested was identified by the woman and her daughter as the one from whom the girl had bought liquor. The girl said he had boasted he paid the police for protection.

Budapest—Prince Abdul Kadir, son of the last sultan of Turkey and once worth $50,000,000, is seeking from the ministry of labor the right to join a gypsy orchestra as a violinist. Four wives—one at a time—have deserted him since his expulsion from Turkey.

Ottawa—Clothes matter little to Canadian ski experts as long as there is snow. Premier Mackenzie King visited enthusiasts at Catineau. "Are you not cold in such a costume?" he asked a girl in a sleeveless red shirt. Then two boys in bathing suits came racing along on skis. The premier inquired no more.

Newport, R. I.—What's the thrill of a shipwreck in the dark and during a snowstorm to a good sound sleeper? All 75 passengers discoverable were taken off the steamship Richard Peck, Providence to New York, after it struck a rock in Narragansett Bay. When the steamship was towed to port another passenger was found in the arms of morpheus in his stateroom. The modest hero refused to give his name.

Budapest—Little King Mike wishes these royal weddings were frequent. His mother has returned from the nuptials of her uncle, Prince Christopher of Greece, and Princess Françoise De Guise laden with presents for him.

and distinction, not only to himself but to the Senate and to the people of the United States. He would seem fitting also at this time to offer a word of welcome and greeting to our new Senators. They found their fellow Senators as I found them, most human and friendly gentlemen, willing and anxious to help newcomers where they may.

President's Duties and Obligations

My service among you has impressed me with the responsibilities every Senator, and at the same time it has given me a clear understanding of the duties and obligations of the vice president. He is not one of the makers of a law, nor is he consulted about rules adopted to govern your actions. His obligations to the people of the country to whom he owes a high position and his duty to the Senators call for a fair and impartial construction of the rules which you, yourselves, have adopted. In which you alone may change. His obligations and duties require a recognition and application of the precedents which have brought the United States Senate to its present recognized position of paramount importance as a legislative body. With the familiarity gained from years of close observation, aided by your full cooperation, with which little can be done, I expect to obey your will, which is the will of the people; to give it effect with the utmost dispatch; and to expedite the business of the Senate in an orderly and speedy manner for which I take it is not only your desire but also the wish of our people. In fact, to be an integral part of this body, not a being strange to or remote and detached from it. To do these things within the limits of my abilities I conceive to be the whole scope and sphere of a vice president. The task is not easy. I ask your help and indulgence. With a whole-hearted spirit of cooperation between us I am certain our achievements in the Congress before us will redound to the immediate and ultimate good of all.

your proceedings will be so much to your credit in the eyes of our people and so much to the credit of our people in the eyes of the world that they will stand for years in the future as the highest mark of legislative endeavor within, and perhaps without the United States. It gives me pleasure, sir, to receive the gavel from you and to take over the duties of the vice president.

MANY V. F. W. MEMBERS AT COUNTY COUNCIL MEETING

A large number of Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States attended the Hudson Valley County Council meeting held at Windham on Sunday afternoon. At the meeting a goodly amount of business was transacted and much enthusiasm shown.

One of the chief orders of business was the pledging of aid in getting bills through the legislature for the helping of needy veterans. A very inspiring talk on this subject was given by Herman R. La Tourrette, department adjutant. It was brought up that a Ladies' Auxiliary to the Hudson Valley Council would be a great asset. One likely will be formed in the future.

Auxiliary to the Hudson Valley Council would be a great asset. One likely will be formed in the future.

Great interest is being shown in the Veterans of Foreign Wars' organization. This was manifested by the number who attended the Sunday meeting at Windham. One member rode nine miles on horseback in order to be present at the council session. He came from Beach Coppers. The V. F. W. unit at Windham is called Catekill Mountain Post, No. 1545. It was organized on February 21, 1928, and has a membership of 56.

White House To Be Just Another Home To New First Lady

Washington, March 4 (AP).—Mrs. Herbert Hoover will bring to the White House a homelike informality such as Washington rarely has seen. For her, the White House will be not only the executive mansion but another home, and she plans to open its doors to her friends just as she has all the other homes with which she has ringed the world. Those who know her best expect no change in the easy informality with which she always has received them. To her door behind the historic white columns of the White House, they say, will still come the long line of world travelers, scientists, engineers, explorers and statesmen who always have found their way to her hearth wherever she and her engineer husband have lived.

LEGAL FOOLISHNESS.

Oliver Deardorff, New York taxi driver, probably agrees with the Shakespearean character who said "The law is an ass." He has good reason. Deardorff, attacked by a hold-up man, fought his assailant, took the man's gun from him and put him to flight. He then began to think what he should do with the gun. It is unlawful, he knew, to carry a weapon in New York. So he stopped the first policeman he saw, told his story and gave the gun to the officer.

To his amazement the officer arrested him as a violator of the fire-arms ordinance. He was taken to jail. There was no doubt of his story. The policeman, the judge and the prosecutor all sympathized with him. But law was law, and the law said he had committed a serious offense in "possessing" that weapon from the time he took it from the bandit until the time he gave it to the policeman. Moreover, with his arrest, his taxi license was automatically canceled, so his livelihood was gone. The law did that, too. Possibly by this time, the New York authorities have discovered some way to undo this legal sin.

WASHINGTON'S STILL.

It is said that in the plans to restore further property once belonging to George Washington, a large whisky still is to be ignored. At Dogue Run, not far from Mount Vernon, the first president had a mill which converted the finest grain raised on his estate into excellent flour. He also had a distilling plant in which the surplus grain was converted into excellent corn and rye whisky. The foundations of both these plants have been located and their structures could easily be rebuilt. The mill is to be restored for posterity to look upon with interest and admiration. Not so the distilling plant.

The distinction seems unnecessary. There is nothing particularly shocking or dreadful in knowing that George Washington was a distiller as well as a farmer, a statesman, a soldier, a surveyor and a few other things. His greatness is not dimmed by the fact that he was successful in a business sideline which was not illegal or disgraceful in his day.

A motorist writes to the paper to express his gratification over the more frequent arrest of pedestrians these days. It's about time, he says, that these malfactors were getting what they deserve. The destruction of automobile lamps and fenders from people walking into them has become a public scandal. "Arrest the rascals by all means," he urges. "But don't stop there. Before the country will be finally rid of the nuisance, we must have a law compelling pedestrians to take out licenses. I have been working on this idea ever since I had to pull a reckless pedestrian out of my radiator last week. It was a perfectly good radiator, but you ought to see it now. It's the bane of my existence. The way pedestrians rush across my path when I'm driving somewhere in a hurry. Don't they know that rushing around like that shortens their lives and makes them irritable and hard to live with?" Another good idea may be added. Why not impose a fuel tax on pedestrians, to be collected by groceries, restaurants and other filling stations?

The sustaining effect of music on sound rhythm as an accompaniment to physical exertion has long been recognized. One of the commonest illustrations is the staging or chanting of negroes at their work, every "G" seeming to be given emphasis and force thereby. A more recent illustration is found in morning exercises conducted over the radio, the participants limbering up and keeping at it to an extent altogether unlikely without the support or spur of musical rhythm. Recent experiments in factories are said to have shown that jazz music of a lively rhythm, with which the workers can "keep time" increases production apparently. But it is somewhat surprising to read that in the typewriting classes in Asheville, N. C., the students now "learn typing to the tune of phonographic music," even in the earlier exercises tapping out groups of letters "to the rhythm of music."

New Jersey and Delaware, although two of the old original Thirteen States, still have on their hands an unsettled boundary dispute, which is now to be taken up for consideration once more. The difficulty is that the part of the boundary line in doubt is under water and that the fishermen from each side would not be likely to respect it even if it were plainly marked.

In his book, "I Was a Bandit," Eddie Guerin, "world famous crook," confesses that it didn't pay. Not only did he live in jail much of the time but he never pocketed much money, and now at 67 he is tired, homeless and penniless.

FASTING.

While there can be no question that abstaining from food—fasting—is one of the most valuable forms of treatment in medicine, there can likewise be no question but that prolonged fasting for everybody is very unwise.

When you feel a little below par, your first thought should be to get off your feet and do "without" food entirely, except perhaps a little water.

This not only rests the heart, but gives the system a chance to gradually get rid of the poisons that the blood.

If your doctor tells you that your trouble comes from overeating, then after fasting for a couple of days, it would be wise to go on what is called a "low diet."

This consists of what is known as "filling foods," foods that satisfy the appetite or feeling of hunger, but yet do not contain as much actual food value as other foods.

Dr. H. Determan suggests a vegetable marrow salad, then a cup of beef tea, followed by a large dish of steamed vegetables with meat flavor, and a spicy salad, finishing up with raw or stewed fruit and a cup of coffee.

You can readily see that meals like the above would have a great volume and would certainly fill up the stomach.

These meals could be kept up for a few weeks during which time the various organs of the body would get a chance to continue working all right but not under pressure.

A diet such as above would be valuable where the liver and kidneys have been overworked, in cases of high blood pressure, and where there was much overweight.

So although a complete fast of a day or two would likely be good for everybody sick or well, it is quite unsafe to fast for any greater length of time unless under the supervision of your family doctor. Many cases of complete collapse have been due to prolonged fasts. If you are a big eater and want to fast, your doctor will be only too pleased to see you do it under his care, because it cleanses the system and gives the organs a rest.

The low diet is a safer proposition where the general condition is below normal.

"My Thirty Years at Sea"

By CAPTAIN GEORGE FRIED

As far back as 1903 wireless came to a thrill. Then it was personal messages. A few years later it was in connection with a radio operator here under circumstances similar to those in which he years afterwards was to be the central figure. His first ship to shore audible communication is described as a "real thrill."

By CAPT. GEORGE FRIED
 (Copyright, 1929, Associated Press)

CHAPTER VII
 One of the greatest values of modern day science to the men at sea is the wireless. Prior to the development of the radio, ships traveling from port to port were never in communication with each other nor with the shore.

I recall, before wireless service, taking the ship's chronometer to the nearest telegraph or cable station to get the correct time to determine the instrument's error and rate. Of course it was necessary to wait for the flash which indicated the correct time.

Whoever carried the chronometer had to be extremely careful—in fact, it had to be transported much in the same fashion as you would carry a basket of eggs. It was absolutely es-essential to keep the chronometer away from any electrical influences such as motors and trolley cars, and you had to carefully select a conveyance because the instrument was extremely delicate and could not be jarred.

The first thrill that I got from the radio was when I was aboard the cruiser Minneapolis. The Navy had installed a crystal receiving set and the first night there was considerable excitement when word spread that we were to receive news dispatches from shore. Every night while at sea men would congregate in the radio room to get these reports first hand. The news received would spread quickly throughout the ship.

Introduction of this novelty created considerable excitement. Frequently messages written on radiogram sheets would be found lying in different parts of the ship. These messages would sometimes say that we were to head for a different port or that we would turn about and start at once for home instead of following the original itinerary.

These reports, of course, were erroneous and were dropped on the decks with the idea of creating a sensation. It was not long before the hoax was discovered. The captain of the vessel then issued an order saying that anyone writing a false report or spreading rumors purporting to come from the radio room would be severely punished. Personal messages were accepted for transmission in the early days about 1905, but

TRIPLE ACTION

Ends coughs the MEDICAL WAY!

No other Cough Syrup has it!

Husband and wife... both catch serious colds..... Both well in two days. "Triple Action" did it!

"We had to visit some friends on a bad rainy day. When we got home that night, we both were coughing in chorus. My husband had fever and complained of a pain in his chest. I gave him some Smith Brothers Cough Syrup and took a teaspoonful myself. Right away I felt better. In the morning we continued taking Smith Brothers—and in two days we both were just as well as ever. My husband and I now both swear by Smith Brothers Cough Syrup!"—Mrs. W. P. Frost

Q. Smith Brothers Cough Syrup works so surely and so quickly because of Triple Action. This scientific principle does the three things that you want to get a cough out of your system: 1—it soothes 2—it mildly laxative, 3—it cleanses passages. It has the famous cough drop flavor.

PETER is a delicate boy—very apt to catch cold. This winter when he started coughing and sneezing, we gave him Smith Brothers Cough Syrup. It is almost unbelievable how quickly this syrup helped him. He stopped coughing, his fever went down, and in three days he had lost his cold completely! We are certainly grateful to Smith Brothers Cough Syrup—it worked wonders with our boy!"—Mrs. Robert L. Rogers

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

The local buzzer nearly spoiled the Saturday night and was very much in evidence all of Sunday. In the evening it let up and programs from New York and Schenectady were nearly perfect. The Old Comedy program of old songs ranged from sentimental, healthily so, "Silent Threads Among the Gold" to fully reminiscent "Little Brown Jug." The Studebaker program was well rendered but somewhat mushy in regard to selections. The Atrium program was, as always, extremely good. The Station Shoe program is getting monotonous and tiresome.

ELEANOR GUNN ON FASHIONS

Spring Coats Are As Often Simple As They Are Showy.

New York—In spite of a possible frost effort to inject a short-spring coat many of the smartest women straight. They must have some interesting detail, usually either in seam or intricate cut or finish, to be worthy of being mentioned in the same breath with the extreme things shown only a few weeks ago in Paris and now parading our own streets, and at home in our shop windows.

One of the most extreme spring coats bears the O'Rourke label and is of black cheviot cut on redingote blouse, and collared and cuffed with buttons two on either side placed at a waistline which is most certainly high since the lower buttons are at normal. Of course the raised line registers an exceedingly important season in coats as well as dresses, and in suits perhaps more than in either, but it is perfectly safe to assume that the rank and file of women will have none of it for very obvious reasons. Fashion being no longer the autocrat, she was in previous days, is unconcerned with how her laws are kept. She is tolerant and allows us to take or leave most of what she offers.

The smart spring coat has a comfortable habit of being either black or navy. Black remains very elegant and for trimming one reverts to black furs instead of the light ones heretofore favored. Gaiyak is one of the most important pelts and is capable of very smart usage. The reappearance of figured lining even when unrelated to the dress is another item of considerable importance. Naturally ensembles involving a staid dress must have the coat either plainly lined, or repeating the print.

Spring stockings to be correct must be matched to one's complexion. Face powder shades accent suntan tones.

While the tricorne has not been universally accepted, many of the smartest spring hats have a sharp corner or two to their credit, brims being nothing if not irregular.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Charming Afternoon Dress. 6371. Printed silk was used for this attractive model. The upper part of the waist portions are joined to the lower part in split curves. Similar shaping is shown at the joining of the flare skirt to the hip yoke. The sleeve is close fitting and finished with a flare insert below the elbow. Rayon, celanese, printed chiffon and velvet are all suggested for this style.

The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. To make this design for an 18 year size will require 3 1/2 yards of 39 inch material. The width of the dress at the lower edge with fullness extended is 2 yards.

Alaskans Increase Beef-Animal Herds By Winter Grazing

Alaskans at Parks (left), who calls attention to the grazing possibilities of Alaska. Above is the "cattle-yak," an experimental hybrid produced by crossing the Asiatic yak with hardy beef breeds. Twenty-three head of buffalo, such as shown below, have been imported for grazing tests.

Juneau, Alaska (P).—Back home from his trip to the United States, Gov. George A. Parks again has set his hand to encouraging wider utilization of Alaskan grazing possibilities.

Twenty-three buffalo, imported from the states, have been turned loose near McCarty in central Alaska, and apparently are thriving. They were imported as an experiment in the raising of animals for food purposes. Their new range resembles that of their native haunts, they have stayed together, and shown no tendency to drift, and agricultural officials believe that because of the large range available it is possible to build up a larger herd than any in the United States.

Alaska already has developed the hybrid "cattle-yak," a cross between the Asiatic yak and hardy beef cattle strains that is expected to figure prominently in the beef enterprise. A bill now is before Congress to permit the introduction of musk oxen. Introduction of elk also is anticipated.

Reindeer raising is well established in Alaska, and there is some cattle and sheep grazing on the island to the south and west, particularly on Kodiak island and on Unalakleet, Alaska of the Aleutian chain.

Reindeer herds now number between 500,000 and 600,000 head.

Alaska has a total area of about 380,000 square miles, of which about 350,000 square miles are of value for grazing, including the treeless tundra bordering the Bering Sea and the Arctic coast—the prairie of the north. In the interior is found a mixed tundra, open woodland, and the lichen cover of the mountain areas.

Some of the valleys and slopes on the border of the mainland offer grazing opportunities for cattle and sheep, and there are certain favorably located ranges in the interior.

Experiments in winter grazing in the Lignite district north of Mount McKinley have resulted in fattened and healthy cattle, and the discovery of a winter range that is expected to prove a valuable asset to stockmen. The range is sheltered from severe weather, warm winds help maintain a moderate temperature all winter as well as to cause snow to melt as soon as it falls.

The area is rich in bunch grass and the lack of heavy snow serves to make the range ideal for winter grazing. Thousands of caribou in the district moved off early this year before lessening the feed to any noticeable extent.

Remarkable Collection

A silver mounted drinking horn is dated 1340.

Mythical Fountain

Pirene was a celebrated fountain at Corinth, which took its origin from Pirene, a daughter of Oceanus who melted away into tears through grief over the loss of her son, Cenchreus. At this fountain Bellerophon is said to have caught Pegasus. The fountain burst forth from the rock in Acrocorinthus.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, creosote is recommended by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germ. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

Hoover Stresses Obedience of Law

of the citizen, by exploitation of the law, or by combinations of criminals. Justice must not fail because the agencies of enforcement are either delinquent or inefficiently organized. To consider these evils, to find their remedy, is the most sore necessity of our times.

Enforcement of the 18th Amendment. Of the undoubted abuses which have grown up under the 18th amendment, part are due to the causes I have just mentioned, but part are due to the failure of some states to accept their share and of many state and local officials to accept the obligation under their oath of office to enforce the law. With the failures from these many causes has come a dangerous expansion in the criminal elements who have found enlarged opportunities in dealing in illegal liquor.

But a large responsibility rests directly upon our citizens. There would be little traffic in illegal liquor if only criminals patronized it. We must awake to the fact that this patronage from large numbers of law-abiding citizens is supplying the rewards and stimulating crime.

I have been selected by you to execute and enforce the laws of the country. I propose to do so to the extent of my own abilities, but the measure of success that the government shall attain will depend upon the moral support which you, as citizens, extend. The duty of citizens to support the laws of the land is co-equal with the duty of their government to enforce the laws which exist. No greater national service can be given by men and women of good will—who, I know, are not unfaithful to the responsibilities of citizenship—than that they should, by their example, assist in stamping out crime and outlawing all transactions with illegal liquor. Our whole system of self-government will crumble either if officials elect who will enforce or citizens elect who will support the law. The worst evil of disregard for some law is that it destroys respect for all law. For our citizens to patronize the violation of a particular law on the ground that they are opposed to it is destructive of the very basis of all that protection of life, of homes, and property which they rightfully claim under other laws. If citizens do not like laws, their duty as honest men and women is to discourage its violation; their right is openly to work for its repeal.

To those of criminal mind there can be no appeal but rigorous enforcement of the law. Fortunately they are but a small percentage of our people. Their activities must be stopped.

A National Investigation. I propose to appoint a national commission for a searching investigation of the whole structure of our federal system of jurisprudence, to include the method of enforcement of the 18th amendment and the causes of abuse under it. Its purpose will be to make such recommendations for re-organization of the administration of federal laws and court procedure as may be found desirable. In the meantime it is essential that a large part of the enforcement activities be transferred from the treasury to the department of justice as a beginning of more effective organization.

The Relation of Government to Business.

The election has again confirmed the determination of the American people that regulation of private enterprise and not government ownership or operation is the course to be pursued in our relation to business. In recent years we have established a differentiation in the whole method of business regulation between the industries which produce and distribute commodities on the one hand, and public utilities on the other. In the former, our laws insist upon effective competition; in the latter, because by substantially confer a monopoly by limiting competition, we must regulate their service and rates. The rigid enforcement of the laws applicable to both groups in the very base of equal opportunity and freedom from domination for all our people, and it is just as essential for the stability and prosperity of business itself as for the protection of the public at large. Such regulation should be extended by the federal government within the limitations of the constitutional states are without power to protect their citizens through their own authority. On the other hand, we should be fearless when the authority rests only in the federal government.

Cooperation by the Government

The larger purpose of our economic thought should be to establish more firmly stability and security of business and employment and thereby remove poverty still further from our borders. Our people have in recent years developed a new-found capacity for cooperation among themselves to effect high purposes in public welfare. It is an advance toward the highest conception of self-government. Self-government does not and should not imply the use of political agencies alone. Progress is born of cooperation in the community—not from governmental restraints. The government should assist and encourage these elements of collective self help by itself cooperating with them. Business has by cooperation made great progress in the regularity of service, in stability, in the correction of its own abuses. Such progress, however, can continue only so long as business manifests its respect for law.

There is an equally important field of cooperation by the federal government with the multitude of agencies, state, municipal and private, in the systematic development of those processes which directly affect public health, recreation, education and the like. We have need further to perfect the means by which government can be adapted to human service.

Education. Although education is primarily a responsibility of the states and local communities, and rightly so, yet the nation as a whole is vitally concerned in its development everywhere to the highest standards and to complete universal self-government can succeed only through an instructed electorate. Our objective is not simply to overcome illiteracy. The nation has marched far beyond that. The more complex the problems of the nation become, the greater is the need for more and more advanced instruction. Moreover, as our numbers increase and as our life expands with science and invention, we must discover more and more leaders for every walk of life. We cannot hope to succeed in directing this increasingly complex civilization unless we can draw all the talent of leadership from the whole people. One civilization after another has been wrecked upon the attempt to secure sufficient leadership from a single group or class. If we would prevent the growth of class distinctions and would constantly refresh our leadership with the ideals of our people, we must draw constantly from the general mass. The full opportunity for every boy and girl to rise through the selective processes of education can alone secure to us this leadership.

Public Health. In public health the discoveries of science have opened a new era. Many sections of our country and many groups of our citizens suffer from diseases, the eradication of which are mere matters of administration and moderate expenditure. Public health service should be as fully organized and as universally incorporated into our governmental system as is public education. The returns are a thousandfold in economic benefits, and infinitely more in reduction of suffering and promotion of human happiness.

World Peace. The United States fully accepts the profound truth that our own progress, prosperity and peace are interlocked with the progress, prosperity and peace of all humanity. The whole world is at peace. The dangers to a continuation of the peace today are largely the fear and suspicion which still haunt the world. No suspicion or fear can be rightly directed toward our country.

Those who have a true understanding of America know that we have no desire for territorial expansion, for economic or other domination of other peoples. Such purposes are repugnant to our ideals of human freedom. Our form of government is ill adapted to the responsibilities which inevitably follow permanent limitation of the independence of other peoples. Superficial observers seem to find no destiny for our abounding increase in population, in wealth and power except that of imperialism. They fail to see that the American people are engrossed in the building for themselves of a new economic system, a new social system, a new political system—all of which are characterized by aspirations of freedom of opportunity and thereby are fall to realize their dreams. They are pressing more and more into our situations of learning; that our people are seeking a larger vision through art, literature, science and travel; that they are moving toward stronger moral and spiritual life—that from these things our sympathies are broadening beyond the bounds of our nation and race toward true expression in a real brotherhood of man. They fail to see that the idealism of America will lead it to no narrow or selfish channel, but in a civilization to do its full share as a nation toward the advancement of mere declaration, but by taking a practical part in supporting all useful international undertakings. We do not only desire peace with the world, but to see peace maintained throughout the world. We wish to advance the reign of justice and reason toward the extinction of force. The recent treaty for the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy sets an advanced standard in our conception of the relations of nations. Its acceptance should pave the way to greater limitation of armament, the offer of which we sincerely extend to the world.

But its realization also implies a greater and greater perfection in the instrumentalities for pacific settlement of controversies between nations. In the creation and use of these instrumentalities we should support every sound method of conciliation, arbitration and judicial settlement. American statesmen were among the first to propose that they have constantly urged upon the world the establishment of a tribunal for the settlement of controversies of a justifiable character. The permanent court of international justice in its major purpose is thus peculiarly identified with American ideals and with American statesmanship. No more potent instrumentality for this purpose has ever been conceived and no other is practicable of establishment. The reservations placed upon our adherence should not be misinterpreted. The United States seeks by these reservations no special privilege or advantage but only to clarify our relation to advisory opinions and other matters which are subsidiary to the major purpose of the court. The way should, and I believe will be found by which we may take our proper place in a movement so fundamental to the progress of peace.

Our people have determined that we should make no political engagements, such as membership in the League of Nations, which may commit us in advance as a nation to become involved in the settlements of controversies between other countries. They adhere to the belief that the independence of America from such obligations increases its ability and availability for service in all fields of human progress.

I have lately returned from a journey among our sister republics of the western hemisphere. I have country as their expression of friendship to our country. We are held by particular bonds of sympathy and common interest with them. They are common in building a racial character and culture which is an impressive contribution to human progress. We wish only for the maintenance of their independence, the growth of their stability and their prosperity. The record is in encouraging contrast with that of other parts of the world. Fortunately the new world is largely free from the inheritances of fear and distrust which have so troubled the old world. We should keep it so. It is impossible, my countrymen, to speak of peace without profound emotion. In thousands of homes in America, in millions of homes around the world, there are vacant chairs. It would be a shameful confession of our unworthiness if it should develop that we have abandoned the hope for which all these men died. Surely mankind is mature enough so that we ought in our own lifetime to find a way to permanent peace. Abroad, to west and east, are nations whose sons mingled their blood with the blood of our sons on the battlefields. Most of these nations have contributed to our race, to our culture, our knowledge and our progress. From one of them we derive our very language and from many of them much of the genius of our institutions. Their desire for peace is as deep and sincere as our own.

Peace can be contributed to by respect for our ability in defense. Peace can be promoted by the limitation of arms and by the creation of the instrumentalities for peaceful settlement of controversies. But it will become a reality only through self-restraint and active effort in friendliness and helpfulness. I covet for this administration a record of having further contributed to advance the cause of peace.

Party Responsibilities. In our form of democracy the expression of the popular will can be effected only through the instrumentality of political parties. We maintain party government not to promote intolerant partisanship but because opportunity must be given for expression of the popular will, and organization provided for the execution of its mandates and for accountability of government to the people. It follows that the government, both in the executive and the legislative branches must carry out in good faith the platforms upon which the party was entrusted with power. But the government is that of the whole people; the party is the instrument through which policies are determined and men chosen to bring them into being. The animosities of elections should have no place in our government for government must concern itself alone with the common weal.

Special Session of the Congress. Action upon some of the proposals upon which the Republican party was returned to power, particularly further agricultural relief and limited changes in the tariff, cannot in justice to our farmers, our labor and our manufacturers be postponed. I shall therefore request a special session of congress for the consideration of these two questions. I shall deal with each of them upon the assembly of the congress.

Other Mandates From the Election.

It appears to me that the more important further mandates from the recent election were the maintenance of the integrity of the constitution; the vigorous enforcement of the laws; the continuance of economy in public expenditure; the continued regulation of business to prevent domination in the community; the denial of ownership or operation of business by the government in competition with its citizens; the avoidance of policies which would involve us in the controversies of foreign nations; the more effective reorganization of the departments of the federal government; the expansion of public works; and the promotion of welfare activities affecting education and the home.

These were the more tangible determinations of the election, but beyond them was the confidence and belief of the people that we would not neglect the support of the embedded ideals and aspirations of America. These ideals and aspirations are the touchstones upon which the day-to-day administration and legislative acts of government must be tested. More than this, the government must, so far as lies within its proper powers, give leadership to the realization of these ideals and to the fruition of these aspirations.

No one can adequately reduce these things of the spirit to phrases or to a catalogue of definitions. We do know what the attainments of these ideals should be. The preservation of self-government and its full foundations in local government; the perfection of justice whether in economic or in social fields, the maintenance of ordered liberty; the denial of domination by any group or class; the building up and preservation of equality of opportunity; the stimulation of initiative and individuality; absolute integrity in public affairs; the choice of officials for fitness to office; the direction of economic progress toward prosperity and the further lessening of poverty; the freedom of public opinion; the sustaining of education and of the tolerance of all faiths; the strengthening of the home; the advancement of peace.

There is no short road to the realization of these aspirations. Ours is a progressive people, but with a determination of conscience. Ill-considered remedies for our ills bring only penalties after them. But if we hold the faith of the men in our mighty past who created these ideals, we shall leave them heightened and strengthened for our children.

Conclusion. This is not the time and place for extended discussion. The questions before our country are problems of progress to higher standards; they are not the problems of degeneration. They demand thought and they serve to quicken the conscience and enlist our sense of responsibility for their settlement. And that responsibility rests upon you, my countrymen, as much as upon those of us who have been selected for office.

Ours is a land rich in resources; filled with millions of happy homes; blessed with comfort and opportunity. In no nation are the institutions of progress more advanced. In no nation are the fruits of achievement more secure. In no nation is the government more worthy of respect. No country is more loved by its people. I have an abiding faith in their capacity, integrity and high purpose. I have no fears for the future of our country. It is bright with hope.

In the presence of my countrymen, mindful of the solemnity of this occasion, knowing what the task means and the responsibility which it involves, I beg your tolerance, your aid and your cooperation. I ask the help of Almighty God in this service to my country to which you have called me.

How Weak Nerves Women Grow Stronger

Feel Better, Look Younger and Have Stronger Nerves

If you only knew—you wouldn't wonder—how many women are dragging around on their "nerves" what a wonderful increase in strength and health Tanlac will give you, you wouldn't hesitate a moment about going to your druggist and getting a big bottle of this splendid medicine.

Mrs. Corney C. Thompson, of 25 Grand View Terrace, Rochester, N.Y., says: "I was subject to bilious spells, sick headaches, my blood was thin and my food wouldn't digest. After six bottles of Tanlac, my sick headaches are gone, my appetite is very good and I have gained 15 lbs."

Tanlac is as free from harmful drugs as the water you drink—only Nature's own medicinal tonic herbs. Druggists know this and for the past 10 years have recommended it to men and women who need a quick "pick up" that will put them on their feet and give them a new interest in life.

So confident are the makers of Tanlac that if you are not helped by it, you get your money back on request.

Entertainment at T. B. Hospital

The patients of the Tuberculosis Hospital were given a real treat on Sunday when Vincent Van Bramer, well-known local dancing instructor, took a number of his entertainers to the camp.

Mr. Van Bramer acted as master of ceremonies and first introduced Lillian Woerner, who put over a fast buck and wing dance. Miss Woerner is a charming little miss and received a big hand. Next came Marge and Shirley Silverman in a bowery dance that went over big. These two little dancers are comers if Sunday's performance can be used as a criterion. Keough did his acrobatic tap dance, getting a hearty round of applause while he danced on his hands. Next came the "Tall of Grace" performed by Shirley Silverman and Lillian Woerner with their grace and poise. Izzy Schwartz came next on the bill and put over a snappy song and dance in his own inimitable manner. Then came Agnes Scully, Marge Silverman, Shirley Silverman, Lillian Woerner and Ruth Seigel in a peppy ensemble dance which merited plenty of applause. Mr. Van Bramer then introduced Mrs. Silverman who sang "Marie." Mrs. Silverman has a charming voice and her singing was one of the high lights of the program. Another number, "Indian Love Call," pleased the audience and was played by Selma Lehr at the piano with Vincent Van Bramer and Irving Schwartz playing violins.

The program was sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Uptown Hebrew School, who engaged Mr. Van Bramer and his troupe. These clever performers are constantly in demand and always perform in a clever manner, showing a marked improvement each time out under the training of Mr. Van Bramer.

The motorists of this vicinity will have a new ordinance which is as follows: No person or persons operating a motor propelled vehicle or vehicles of any nature or the driver of a horse drawn vehicle shall enter upon Partition street from Jane street, from Russell street, from Post street, from Allen street, from Montross street, from Livingston street, from Cross street, Market street from Livingston street and Main street from James street without first causing said vehicle or vehicles to come to a dead stop and thereafter proceed to enter upon such street or avenue as above.

The necessary signers have been secured for placing the candidates in the coming village election on March 19 from 4 to 8 p. m. They are: For mayor, two years, Mervin Gillespie; for trustees, two years, W. H. Overbagh, George B. Ohley, George L. Kerbert, and a trustee for one year, Mrs. Fred T. Lewis.

Farm Bureau Organizes Clubs

The Junior Project Clubs which are being organized by the local Farm Bureau are being greeted with a great deal of enthusiasm by the boys and girls who are members.

Clubs have been organized at Kerhonkson, Highland and district number ten in the town of Lloyd. Because of the lack of time and facilities it will be impossible to organize any other clubs this year.

Several organizations have offered to donate prize money to project workers, which has stimulated interest among the boys and girls. It is also probable that the county fair will have an exhibit department for 4-H workers.

Gardening, poultry, calf and forestry are the most popular projects. Some of the hillside which have been cut over and are now being allowed to go to waste, have been secured for the forestry project workers to plant. Instead of growing to brush and waste land, these lots will now be a steadily growing source of wealth to the region.

Junior Project work is the practical application of the best principles of education, scientific agriculture, good citizenship, and good health. These are the 4-H's of the project workers' creed, the training of the head, hand, heart and health.

Tractor School At New Paltz

A request of the local committee of the Farm Bureau, a tractor school has been arranged for the county. It will be held at New Paltz, starting Monday, March 4, at Mr. Shaffer's garage on the main avenue, just above the railroad.

The school is open to all interested persons. Anyone having a tractor can bring it in and have it under expert supervision. It is desirable to have at least one man work at each tractor, before anyone interested in repairing first hand experience can attend this school.

Two experts from the State College of Agriculture at Cornell will be in direct supervision of the school. They will give instructions and direct all the work. Those who are urged to have all necessary repair parts on hand so the work will not be delayed. The object of this school is to teach men how to do repair work on tractors, thus saving considerable time and money in tractor operation.

A number of farmers have already made application to bring their tractors to this school. If there are others they should get in touch with Albert Kurdt, manager of the Farm Bureau, at 74 John street, or the application through a local mailman.

Dawes to Help Tiny Republic

Washington, March 4 (AP).—The financial world stood the gaiter today as Charles Gates Dawes let slip the mantle of the vice presidency after a four-year interlude in high station of American politics.

A financier of domestic and international reputation before he came into the office which he now turns over to Charles Curtis of Kansas, Dawes once more becomes the head of a great banking house in Chicago which he founded years ago.

By a contrast almost romantic in comparison to the stupendous financial undertakings he has supervised in the past, the first job the retiring vice president will tackle will be to bring order to the treasury of the tiny Dominican Republic in the West Indies.

Such an endeavor to another man might be beneath the notice of an individual whose mind aided in evolving the intricate plan to stabilize the chaotic post-war finances of Europe, but to Dawes it was only another opportunity to give unselfish service to a country less fortunate than his own.

Assured in the closing hours of his administration of the kindly feeling held for him by the senators who declined to meet his demand for a change in the Senate rules to prevent filibusters, General Dawes took up the gavel to preside for the last time today preparatory to returning to his home in Evanston, Ill.

He had been invited to take part in the parade of Hoover and Curtis to the capitol but chose to remain close by the Senate as it wound up its business.

Like Coolidge, Dawes will leave Washington shortly after the inauguration.

Coolidge to Write on Human Interest

New York, March 4 (AP).—Calvin Coolidge will turn to the pursuit of literature when he re-enters private life after today's inauguration of his successor as president of the United States, at least to the extent of one series of magazine articles of the "human interest" type.

As Coolidge's retirement from public life drew near, speculation steadily increased as to the sort of work he would do. No definite word came from the White House but the belief grew that Coolidge would engage in some sort of literary endeavor. And today that report was confirmed in New York.

When the question was put up to him directly whether or not Coolidge was going to write for the American Magazine, Merle Crowell, the publication's editor, acknowledged that a series of articles had been contracted for, although he would give no details.

It was learned, however, that the Coolidge articles will not deal with the fine points of diplomacy or politics, but rather with the "human" side of life in the White House.

Opens Showrooms. 70th Congress At Catskill for New Graham-Paige Ends Quietly

Washington, March 4 (AP).—The 70th Congress ended quietly today, its passing overshadowed by the spectacle of a Presidential inauguration.

At 10:00 o'clock the House assembled in the chamber filled with empty seats and galleries. At 11:00 o'clock Vice President Dawes called the Senate to order for the last time.

A few minor measures were before the House on this last day of the session and the membership took turns in eulogizing those who answered the roll call for the last time.

Before distinguished crowds, gathered into office as vice president, General Dawes called for the regular order of business, which was a bill to enlarge the capitol grounds. It was passed without debate. Senators did not appear to be very much interested in the legislative situation and the galleries languidly awaited the inaugural ceremonies.

A motion was adopted appointing a committee to await on the President who was en route to the capitol. Mr. Dawes named the two leaders, Senator Watson, Republican, Indiana, and Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas.

Then Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, read an eulogy to Curtis, who ended 20 years service in the Senate on Saturday night to assume the Vice Presidency.

CABINET NOMINATIONS GO TO SENATE TUESDAY

Washington, March 4 (AP).—President Hoover will not send the nominations of his cabinet to the Senate until tomorrow.

In this respect he will deviate from the custom of his immediate predecessors. Eight years ago today President Harding's first act after delivering his inaugural address was to appear before an executive session of the Senate and present his nominations in person. They were confirmed the same day.

Hoover's decision made it possible for the new Senate to recess until tomorrow immediately the vice-presidential inauguration was over.

The popularity of the latest models of the Graham-Paige is nationwide, if production figures count for anything. In February a total of 10,004 were turned out, which proved to be the second largest in Graham-Paige history, having surpassed by 175 cars every month of 1928, except August, at the height of the selling season. The February total showed an increase of 76 per cent over the preceding month and is 2 1/2 times the total for the same month last year.

Everyone interested in automobiles is cordially invited to inspect the new Graham-Paige sixes and eights on display at the spacious showrooms at 721 Broadway any time of the day and evening, where a salesman will be on hand to answer questions. Only by personal experience can anyone appreciate the distinguished performance of these new models and all are invited to enjoy a demonstration. In the new cars, which might be called aristocratic, are added beauty, increased size and many new improvements. There are a variety of body types on five chassis in the new sixes and eights.

The New 612 is attracting much attention, the motor being of special interest. Some of the features pointed out are 62 brake horsepower, 2 1/2 inch balanced crankshaft supported in seven extra large bronze-backed interchangeable main bearings, thermostatically controlled cooling with water jackets extending the full length of cylinder bore, and completely surrounding valve seats, adjustable silent chain timing, positively driven gasoline pump, water pump and generator, constant speed aluminum alloy pistons, exhaust front of engine keeping heat away from driving compartment and engine mounted at four points on rubber.

COOLIDGE PUTS IN EXTRA HOURS ON LAST DAY

Washington, March 4 (AP).—Even at the end of his service, President Coolidge put in extra hours today "doing the day's work."

He was up at 7:30, took a short walk in the White House grounds, and then, after breakfast with his family, went to his desk at 8:30. He still had some loose ends of the final congressional offerings to dispose of.

John Coolidge, the president's son, showed up at breakfast in his uniform as a major on the staff of the governor of Connecticut.

Catholic Women's Meeting.
A regular meeting of the Ulster County Unit of the National Council of Catholic Women will be held Tuesday, March 5, at 3 p.m., at Knights of Columbus Hall, corner of Broadway and Andrew street. As most important business is to be transacted, a full attendance is desired.

Our Growing Population.

The following births have been reported to the board of health:
Mr. and Mrs. Maurice D. Powers, 131 Andrew street, a daughter, Ruth Lillian.
Mr. and Mrs. Raymond D. Webster, 473 Wilbur avenue, a son, Raymond Robert, at Kingston Hospital.

MIDDLETOWN WILL HAVE AN INCINERATING PLANT

The taxpayers of Middletown last week approved a bond issue of $45,000 to build an incinerator for the city garbage.

Business Certificate Filed.
Ruth Hosenberger has certified to the Ulster county clerk under the assumed business name law that she is conducting a business at 763 Broadway, Kingston, under the name and style, "Kingston Transfer Company", being successor in interest to Albert Kresling at the corner of Broadway and St. James street.

Ambulance Calls Sunday.
Josephine Sampson, a negro, was seized with a heart attack on Abel street on Sunday and was removed to the Kingston Hospital in the ambulance. The ambulance also removed Mary White from 416 Franklin avenue to the Kingston Hospital on Sunday.

Beds and Antiques.
Good beds on child study, talks on observer in the Women's Home Commission, are invaluable, but child study is seen to be chiefly an attitude of mind of the parent or teacher.

Mayor to Attend Albany Hearing

Mayor E. J. Dempsey will attend the rehearing before the full commission of the Public Service Commission on the matter of the Broadway grade crossing elimination at Albany on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock. The mayor will be accompanied by City Engineer G. Wallace Codwise. The railroad committee of the common council may also attend the hearing. Corporation Counsel Harry H. Flemming and his family are in Washington attending the inauguration, but it is expected that he will return to Kingston in time also to attend the hearing Thursday. The Central Business Association is expected to be represented at the hearing.

Mrs. Hoover Picks Her Gown

Washington, March 4 (AP).—Mrs. Herbert Hoover selected a velvet street gown of a very dark red or plum shade for the inauguration. Her choice was made a little more than an hour before she departed with her husband for the capitol.

The skirt of her dress was draped with circular ruffles and she wore a turban, coat and shoes of the same shade.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Jr., selected as her costume a figured brown dress with a light tan caracul coat and tan hat.

DAY LINE NOT TO LAND AT DESBROSSES STREET

The Hudson River Day Line has announced that the operation of its boats from the Desbrosses street pier will cease May 18, the beginning of the summer season, because the company failed to obtain a renewal of its lease. The line has used the pier as the downtown terminus for sixty-six years.

The company will continue its regular summer service from its two other piers at West Forty-second street and West 129th street. A. V. S. O'Leary, general manager of the Day Line, expressed the opinion that few of the patrons of the line would be inconvenienced by the discontinuance of the downtown terminus, in view of the decided shift of New York's population to uptown districts.

FARM BUREAU DANCE AT NEW PALTZ WEDNESDAY

The Farm Bureau will hold a dance at the Grange Hall in New Paltz on Wednesday evening, March 6. Invitations have been sent out and many have signified their intentions of attending. Anyone who did not receive an invitation may make reservations for the dance by calling the Farm Bureau office on John street. Refreshments will be served during the evening. Zucca's orchestra will furnish music for the dance which is one of a series of dances to be held by the Farm Bureau.

Miami Beach, Fla., March 4 (AP).—Two unmasked robbers held up the Maynard Jewelry Company store here today and escaped with jewelry estimated to be worth between $40,000 and $75,000. Police took up the trail of a large green automobile in which the robbers drove away.

"Results Have Been Far Better Than I Had Ever Expected."

PIERPONT STREET LADY IS AMAZED AT SPLENDID RESULTS OBTAINED FROM NU-ERB.

"After what Nu-Erb has done for me, I will recommend it to anyone," said Mrs. J. Lucas, 55 E. Pierpont St., Kingston, N. Y., in a recent statement to the Nu-Erb man at McBride's Drug Store, 312 Wall street.

"For several years I have been troubled with indigestion and severe pains through my stomach, caused by gas formations. I'd get severe attacks of heartburn, staggering dizzy spells and dark spots floated before my eyes. My nerves were in such a weakened condition that even the least noise around the house made me irritable. I slept poorly at night and I was a chronic victim of constipation.

"Since taking the Nu-Erb, my stomach is in better condition than it has been for years. I have no more trouble with gas or any other distress after meals. It has stopped the dizzy spells, spots before my eyes. It has given me a splendid appetite and my nerves are quieter than they have been for many a day. I gladly recommend this medicine."

Persons who take Nu-Erb say that there is nothing like this remarkable medicine to put an end to such misery and suffering. It tones, strengthens and regulates the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels and drives poisons from the system which cause rheumatism and neuritis. Nu-Erb is free from minerals and all harmful narcotics and drugs.

McBride Drug Store, 312 Wall St., is headquarters in Kingston for Nu-Erb. Go see the Nu-Erb man, making his headquarters there, and let him explain to you the more trouble with gas or any other Mexico City, March 4 (AP).—The Mexican government mobilized loyal forces today to meet the attacks of widespread and serious revolution.

General Plutarco Elias Calles, former president, was drafted from his retirement and made secretary of war in charge of all military operations. As troops were brought here from loyal states to reinforce the Mexico City garrison other combat contingents were prepared for departure to the states of Vera Cruz and Sonora, where the revolt appeared to center. A strict censorship was established.

Vera Cruz and Sonora have been taken over—apparently without bloodshed—by the rebel forces, in Vera Cruz under the command of General Jesus Maria Aguirre, until yesterday chief of military operations there, and in Sonora by General Francisco Manzo, military chief. Governor Fausto Topete and General Manuel Aguirre joined with Manzo. Ambassador Morrow cut short his week-end at Cuernavaca and decided to hasten back to the capital with his family and prospective son-in-law, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

There is a disagreement as to the cause of the outbreak. President Portes Gil's statement says it is the movement of disgruntled military leaders who wished to impose their choice for the presidency upon the country at the elections next November.

While there has been no pronouncement to that effect, it is understood the movement favors the candidacy of Gilberto Valenzuela, former Mexican minister to Great Britain, who has been outspoken in his denunciation of President Portes Gil and General Calles.

General Jesus Aguirre, former close personal friend of General Obregon, and a native Sonoran, appeared to be leader of the rebellion. Dispatches from Sonora indicated that Governor Fausto Topete acknowledged his command.

Rebels Claim Eight States.

The scope of the movement was in some doubt. Rebel "pronouncements" claimed collusion of eight states: Vera Cruz, Sonora, Oaxaca, Sinaloa, Mayan, Coahuila, Chihuahua and Durango.

Outside of the victories in Vera Cruz and Sonora there were no definite reports of defections in other states, although reports of rebel control of the Isthmus of Tehuantepec might imply Oaxaca had revolted.

The government announcement of departure of General Gonzalo Escobar from Torreon was construed as denial of former reports of his defection. There was some uncertainty too of the status of the Mexican navy. Dispatches from Vera Cruz said it had joined General Aguirre; the president's statement to the press, however, said the seven ships in the Vera Cruz harbor had weighed anchor and left, wirelessing the government for instructions.

How Revolution Started.

There were various reports as to how the movement started. The official version is contained in the statement of President Portes Gil, which says that at 7 a. m., yesterday a message was received from General Aguirre stating that various state officials had "assumed a suspicious attitude" and asking instructions.

This, according to the president, was intended to imply loyalty and to afford an opportunity to further the revolt he had already started. A similar message, with similar purpose, the president said, was received at 10 a. m., from General Manzo in Sonora.

Meanwhile the two generals carried their revolt into effect. Aguirre taking over Vera Cruz, Orizaba, which is 80 miles up the railway to Mexico City, Perote, and other places. Manzo, dispatches said, occupied Nogales, Guaymas, Hermosillo, and other cities of importance.

No Resistance Shown.

Nowhere was there resistance to the coup, dispatches indicate. The leaders of the revolt explaining their action simply to those who seemed unaware of it, and taking over public offices without opposition. It is possible that the entire movement thus far has been accomplished without bloodshed.

The rebellion took most of Mexico City by surprise. First intimation that anything was wrong came in reports of interruption of train service on the Mexican Railway Line to Vera Cruz. At the railway station it was said service was discontinued until further notice.

Calles Has War Record.

General Calles as leader of the army is regarded as a tower of strength for the government. He has a war record only less than that of the assassinated president-elect, Alvaro Obregon. In addition he has a strong following with the army and with the public at large.

Of the opposing generals General Aguirre has the most imposing record. He early won a name for himself in his campaigns against the Yaqui Indians.

General Francisco Manzo has also an imposing Indian War record and like Aguirre aided in the suppression of the De La Huerta revolution.

VANDERLYN COUNCIL
CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY.

On Tuesday evening, February 26, the members of Vanderlyn Council, No. 41, D. of A., celebrated the 25th anniversary of the institution of the Council. At the opening of the meeting the following state officers were introduced: State A. V. Coon, Elias M. Snow, S. C. Deputy Mary McCulloch of Havana and Elizabeth Walsh of Kingston. The birthday cake was returned at this time and a song, "Romeo and Juliet," sung by some of the members, was greatly enjoyed. After the entertainment all gathered around the tables that a very efficient committee had filled with good things to eat. Sister Snow brought in the birthday cake and told how the council had prospered in the 25 years of its existence by giving a short history of a number of members initiated and also of the different experiences and changes that have come in the 25 years. In summing up it was found that the sweet experiences outnumbered the bitter by quite a number and each and every one agreed that this was the best birthday Vanderlyn had ever had.

People who have the same shape of noses are not matrimonial mates, declares a European specialist, and those with snub or Roman noses should select their life partners from the owners of straight olfactory organs.

Since the introduction of the Packard Six, forerunner of today's Packard Eight, $40,199,000 have been expended for facilities useful in the manufacture and distribution of Packard cars. Because of this huge expenditure incomparably better cars have been developed, step by step, and now are offered for less than half the price of the original Packard Six.

Packard has concentrated its millions and its experience on one name and on one ideal. The public has been most gracious in its support. And as Packard has prospered, it has shared its prosperity with those who buy its cars—giving better cars at constantly lower prices.

These new low prices follow the price reduction announced but a few months ago on Packard's Custom line. They afford the public a more favorable opportunity than ever before to have the many advantages and features found only in Packard cars.

When may we demonstrate these features to you? Your used car will be accepted as cash, and if of average value will more than make the down payment on a new car. Then—a profitable and enjoyable ownership lasting four or five times the payment period, an ownership more advantageous now than at any time during Packard's thirty years of fine car building.
